A patent that protects technology essential to a standard is called a standard-essential patent. A standard is a document that sets out requirements for a specific item, material, component, system or service, or describes in detail a particular method or procedure.

For example, a modern laptop computer implements around 251 interoperability standards.

- Orphan Drug Exclusivity

An orphan drug is a pharmaceutical agent that has been developed specifically to treat a rare medical condition. India currently has no regulations for orphan drug manufacturing or selling. Treating rare or orphan diseases is important to India but very costly, which increases the patient burden.
