The organization wants to foster a voter involvement culture among young people and potential voters through ELC. The tasks are thoughtfully crafted to impart information that will enable them to become "Empowered (Prospective) Voters." The ELC plans events that promote a better understanding of political processes and address societal issues related to elections through debates, elocution, essay writing, and poster presentations.

Through interactive exercises, students between the ages of 18 and 21 can learn about and practice electoral literacy at the ELC. It also explains to them the registration and voting process, as well as their voting rights, all the while being neutral, apolitical, and nonpartisan. Through stimulating and interesting exercises, students are prompted to reflect and pose questions.
